UPHOLDS EVOLUTION STUDY IN SCHOOLS
Columbia Professor Attacks Bryan and Those Favoring Dark Age Methods.
CHICAGO, March 1.—Attempts to suppress by law the teaching of the doctrine of evolution and other scientific theories in the public schools were vigorously opposed to-day by speakers before the annual meeting of the National Education Association.
Recent writings and lectures by W. J. Bryan, urging a "back to the Bible movement," and efforts of legislators in Kentucky to pass a law against the teaching of Darwinism were viewed as representing an attempt to substitute methods of the Dark Ages for modern public schooling.
"Opposition to the theory of evolution," declared Prof. Edwin R. A. Seligman of Columbia University, "expresses the ideas of the childhood of society. Now, if we are going back to childhood, let's go all the way. Let's teach that the earth is flat and that the sun moves around it."
He suggested as an effective proof of evolution the discovery of an exhibit containing the remains of extinct dinosaur and other exhibits of animal life—all showing the proofs of evolution through the ages.
"The effort to support and defend the country where it is most needed," Mr. Bryan was characterized by the Professor as being "still a medievalist."
"The effort to support and defend the Bible through legislation," Dr. Frank E. Spaulding, head of the Department of Education of the Graduate School of Yale University, declared, "strongly suggests a wavering faith on the part of the advocates of such measures."
"Those who are sound in the faith," he asserted, "know that the unimpaired effort to extend the knowledge of truth in every direction can only confirm the truths of the Bible that have stood unshakable through the ages."
"If we were to eliminate those studies based on the doctrine of evolution from our public school curricula, we would have left no science at all in the schools. I think Mr. Bryan and certain State legislators and their supporters in this matter are taking the wrong course. Such methods lead away from the true spirit of the Bible."

EVOLUTION OPPONENTS 'ENEMIES OF PUBLIC'
Prof. Petrunkevitch Denounces Bryan et Al.
SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.
NEW HAVEN, March 1.—Prof. Alexander Petrunkevitch of the zoological department at Yale University to-day issued a statement in which he said that opponents of the theory of evolution are "enemies of the public good."
"The recent attempt of some members of the Kentucky Legislature to saddle on the people of their State a law prohibiting the teaching of evolution arouses and heightens in the mind of all who have at heart the welfare of the growing generation," he said, "the feeling of indignation and indignation and narrow mindedness sadly at odds with the broad spirit of the great framers of the American Constitution. While the political experimenters in famine stricken Russia tell their teachers and professors: 'Teach Marxian doctrines and evolution or you shall be put in jail as counter revolutionists,' our own political experimenters say: 'Dare not to teach evolution or you shall be put in jail as counter revolutionists.'"
"Science is not concerned with religion. It seeks the truth, and if any church finds that her own teachings are at variance with the discoveries of science, such a church should at once revise in her own teachings whatever is wrong. Or will Mr. W. J. Bryan, the new champion of obscurantism, presume upon himself the right to decide wherein the Bible is correct and wherein it is at fault? Should the controversy about Jonah be revived? And if everything contained in the Bible is perfect, why to teach science at all?"

EVOLUTION BILL IS KILLED.
Kentucky House Committee Will Not Report Measure.
FRANKFORT, Ky., March 1.—The Associated Press learned authoritatively to-day that the evolution bill will not be reported out of the Kentucky House Rules Committee. This will kill the measure, which would prohibit the teaching in the supported schools of the State of anything that would "undermine the faith of students."
Protests against the bill have been received from educators all over the United States.

TO SET WOMEN TO CATCH WOMEN IN WAR ON CRIME
Female Detectives and Deputy United States Marshals to Be Pitted Against Increasing Army of Female Bandits, Bootleggers, Gamblers and Thieves.
SPECIAL DISPATCH TO THE NEW YORK HERALD.
New York Herald Bureau, Washington, D. C., March 1.
"The girl detective versus the girl bandit."
Under this title is developing a chapter in the history of crime and its detection and punishment in the United States. Nearly one hundred girls and women are on the rolls of the Department of Justice as deputy United States marshals.
Having provided herself with a repeating rifle and a revolver, a twenty-two-year-old girl at Syracuse assisted a man in holding up a taxicab and later a storekeeper. The girl stood off the police while her companion made good his escape. She was captured, but the male bandit got away.
In every section of the United States women are accelerating the crime wave, are being forced to appear in courts to defend themselves against criminal charges.
Women bootleggers are making difficult the enforcement of the Volstead law. On the borders they are smuggling liquor into the United States, and in the cities women are arrested frequently for distilling and selling liquor. Homes for the detention of women criminals are crowded in many cities. Police in New York and other large centers make arrests daily of numbers of women.
With women both enforcing and violating the law a criminal war within the limits of sex is developing. The stage is set to put to practical test the formula of "Set a woman to catch a woman."
Women sworn in as deputy United States marshals are ordinarily not employed in active field work. Although they have the full power to make arrests—that goes with the commission—in most cities where they have been commissioned they are detailed to work as clerks of marshals. The rapidly increasing number of women taking to violating law, however, will lead to the employment of members of the sex in active detective work.
Police chiefs of most large cities have proved the efficiency of women for police duties of specified character. In Washington women who belong to the police force are detailed to work that involves contact with children and adult females. In other cities the same plan is in operation.
Women commissioned as deputy United States marshals might well be employed in the detection and arrest of female gamblers. It is pointed out, Gambling, race betting and other forms of wagering that are contrary to law are being indulged in generally by women in so-called tea rooms and candy kitchens. In one mid-Western city police recently raided a women's rendezvous disguised as a luncheon club, where liquor was being served and gambling with cards was going on.

'POET AND ART PATRON' SUES PARIS COLLECTOR
Arensberg Says Vignier Owes Him $22,413 on Loan.
Justice Ford in the Supreme Court granted an order yesterday permitting the service through the mail of a summons and complaint on Charles Vignier, a Parisian art collector, in a suit brought by Walter C. Arensberg, who is described as "a poet and patron of art and letters," now in California.
Arensberg says Vignier owes $22,413, which was furnished with the understanding that he would French art objects to a Fifth Avenue art gallery, managed by Marius De Zayas, supported by Arensberg. The art objects were to be held as security and the proceeds of the sales were to go on the loans which had been made to the art collector.

MANTLE AND BRIDE ON COAST.
Ex-Senator, 71, Says a Man Is as Old as He Feels.
SAN FRANCISCO, March 1.—Lee Mantle, 71, former United States Senator from Montana, married in Chicago last Saturday to Miss Mary Etta Daly, 25, was here to-day with his bride to visit her mother, Mrs. Mary Daly.
"A man is as old as he feels," said Mr. Mantle, "and in spirit I am not old. There is nothing forced about this marriage. We like each other. It is a natural alliance and that is all there is to it."

INDICT UNION CHIEF IN $21,675 THEFT
Grand Jurors Take Action on Hogan, Who Charged Non-Unionists for Working.
William A. Hogan, financial secretary of Local No. 3, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, upon whose activities the Lockwood committee threw light last December, was indicted yesterday by the Grand Jury charged with the larceny of $21,675. The indictment was handed up to Justice Isador Wasservogel of the Supreme Court and a warrant for Hogan's arrest was issued.
The money constituted "permit money" paid over to Hogan for the union by non-union members for the privilege of working upon union jobs. These non-union electricians, according to testimony, were willing to join the union, but were kept out on the excuse that "the books were too full." The fees were larger than the non-union men would have had to pay if they had been union members, thus increasing building costs.
Four clerks were kept busy taking in money between August 1, 1918, and July 1, 1921, at the headquarters of the union, 130 East Sixty-ninth street. No cash books were kept, however, and auditors testified it was impossible to determine how much money had been taken in. Assessments ranged from $1 a week for helpers to $2.50 a week for journeymen electricians.
At the hearings before the Lockwood committee Hogan was confronted with the widow of a worker whose $1,000 death benefit Hogan admitted he had collected for his organization. The worker was James E. Smith, who died in a Jersey City hospital in October, 1918. The union official admitted to having collected similar death benefits.
Hogan testified that he received a salary of $75 a week as financial secretary and $1,000 a year as treasurer of the national organization. He told of several bank accounts he held and said his home in Mount Vernon was valued at $11,000.
Many of the men who had collected the funds and turned them over to Hogan testified before the Grand Jury yesterday. The case was presented by Abe Friedman, Special Deputy Attorney-General.

BRITAIN DEMANDS MEN HELD FOR SHIP MURDER
Capt. Chute Was Slain on the High Seas.
KEY WEST, March 1.—The British Government moved to-day to obtain custody of members of the crew of the British schooner Lewis Brothers held here in connection with the death at sea last week of her captain, H. Chute, when British Vice Consul Taylor forwarded to Washington a formal request based on instructions from his Government that the men be extradited to Nassau.
Six men are held here in connection with the case, one V. Brackleyhurst the mate, on a Coroner's Jury charge of murder; Giuseppe Amore and Charles Carter, of the crew, are held as accessories and three others are detained as material witnesses.
The British claim for jurisdiction is based on a convention set up in 1852 providing that a crime committed on the high seas shall be dealt with by the country under whose flag the vessel is sailing.

"TRILBY," FAT LADY, IS DEAD.
Mrs. George A. Kenna, Once With Circus, to Have Special Coffin.
CHICAGO, March 1.—Mrs. George A. Kenna, known in circus side shows for years as "Trilby, the Fat Lady," died here yesterday. She quit the circus sixteen years ago and made her home in Chicago. She weighed 400 pounds when she died, and while with the circus her weight is said to have exceeded this by more than 100 pounds.
A coffin one yard wide and 5 feet 3 inches long, is being constructed for the body.

BUILDING BUSINESS
Investment and Speculation
"INVESTMENT" and "speculation" are probably the most misunderstood and misused words in the English language.
Whether a security is classed as an "investment opportunity" or a "business speculation" does not affect the value of the security.
In the realm of finance there is a place for both the "investment opportunity" and the "business speculation."
The trouble is that neither the expression nor the other has a definite, absolute significance in the minds of the general public.
The Business Builders advances no new interpretations.
Nor does it seek any advantage through the juggling of words.
This Institution was planned and founded for permanency.
PERMANENCE and success are altogether dependent upon the deserved confidence of the general public.
And that confidence cannot be won through misrepresentation nor misleading use of terms.
The Business Builders serves established, successful corporations by providing the Men and Money required for expansion.
The Business Builders Salesman brings to you a business opportunity that has stood the test of a most rigid and thorough investigation and analysis.
To safeguard the interests of its thousands of stockholders is one of the guiding principles of this Institution.
There are many reasons why the BUSINESS BUILDERS means so much to so many
